New York, NY—May 11, 2021—SIREAS, a prominent, global corporate real estate and outsourcing management consulting firm, announced that respected industry leader, Scott Tibbo, has joined the company in the role of Managing Director.

“We’re thrilled to welcome Scott to the team,” says Ingrid Fenn, President and CEO of SIREAS. “Scott brings decades of relevant experience from many different sides of the CRE industry that will enable him to provide uniquely valuable insight and advice to our clients.”

Scott has more than 35 years of corporate real estate and facilities management expertise that combines 15 years on the client side, 9 years as a management consultant, and the last 13 years as a senior leader in JLL’s Corporate Solutions business.

As Managing Director at SIREAS, he will lead project teams to help clients objectively assess their operating models and third-party supplier relationships, and design and implement best-in-class organizational and service delivery frameworks that will drive innovation, efficiency, and success across the portfolio.

“Corporate real estate organizations across all industries are examining their existing structures and service delivery models in light of historic shifts in the workplace driving the need to implement best-in-class solutions that are flexible, adaptable and nimble,” says Tibbo. “SIREAS is recognized as a leading consultant in this space, and I’m excited to support the company’s continued growth and the value we bring to our clients.”
